

BOTH FIGHTERS ARE CONFIDENT OF WINNING TONIGHT

Dempsey Says Crown Will

TUNNEY MAKES CLAIMS

Champion Believes He Can Floor the Champion in Big Battle

By James L. Kilgallen
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—"I think I'm good enough to win by a knockout in seven rounds."

Restlessly pacing his suite in the Morrison Hotel like a caged panther, Jack Dempsey made this assertion to close friends today as he waited zero hour tonight when he will have his golden chance to win back the heavyweight championship of the world which he lost in a downpour of rain in Philadelphia just a year ago.

And, at the same time, out at his camp at Lake Villa, Gene Tunney, unruffled and serenely confident, had this to say:

"Expect to win without any great difficulty, this time by a knockout."

The principal actors in the dramatic ring spectacle that is to be staged under blazing arc lights in the vast expanses of the egg-shaped Soldiers' Field before the greatest crowd that ever witnessed a sporting event, had secluded themselves from the public.
They were waiting, as calmly as they could, for the last few trying hours to pass before the bell summons them to the center of a twenty-foot ring pitched close to the breezy shore of the lake front.

Heavily guarded by police, Dempsey came into Chicago last night from his training headquarters at Lincoln Field and went into retirement at the Morrison. He was accompanied by his attractive, dark-eyed wife, Estelle Taylor, screen star, who, after kissing her husband good-bye and wishing him "loads of luck" retired to her apartment in the fashionable Edgewater Beach.

Dempsey was up early this morning, ate a breakfast of bacon and eggs, did light calisthenics in his rooms, and then played cards with friends. Now and then he left the game and walked restlessly around his suite. He was in good humor, however, and joked with his companions. His father, Hiram, who came here from Utah to see his son try to regain his lost laurels, visited him and they had a long chat.

Tunney, fresh from a ten-hour sleep, arose this morning in the best of spirits. He jollied with Lou Pink, his trainer, and Sergeant Bill Smith, his bodyguard, who slept in the same room with the champion.

"It won't be long now," Tunney commented. "Cheer up, you fellows, you seem to be taking it harder than I am."

The champion's main concern seemed to be about the weather. "I hope it will be good and cold tonight," he said. "The colder it is the faster we will have to move in the ring. The faster we move the quicker it will be over."

It was clear and cold with a biting autumnal wind sweeping across Fox Lake.

Tunney planned to leave for Chicago shortly before noon and is expected to put up at the Sherman Hotel, where his baggage now awaits him. The camp was deserted except for detectives and a few of Tunney's close friends. Tunney ate a hearty breakfast at 8 o'clock and then returned to his rooms to await his departure to Chicago. Two police cars, armed with detectives, arrived shortly after dawn heralding the departure of the champion.

Both Dempsey and Tunney received hundreds of telegrams wishing them the best of luck. Scores of telegrams came to Dempsey from the motion picture colony of Hollywood. Many of the telegrams to Tunney were from business leaders, society personages and statesmen. Theodore Roosevelt and Joseph P. Kamp were among those who sent messages to the champion.

Tunney and Dempsey will weigh in at 3 o'clock this afternoon before representatives of the Illinois Boxing Commission. Tunney is expected to weigh about 159 and Dempsey 195.
Dempsey planned to take a short nap this afternoon. Tunney will eat his final meal, carefully selected by a dietician, at 4:30 p. m. and then will retire to sleep. In discussing the fight, Dempsey said this morning:

"I haven't the slightest fear that I cannot whip Tunney this time. He

Fine Exhibition of Flowers Indicated for Annual Show

Indications point to a wonderful exhibit of flowers at the annual dahlia and flower show of The Bristol Dahlia Association. The exhibit is scheduled for September 28th and 29th, and growers of dahlias here say that the blooms were never in better condition than they are this year.

The weather, apparently, has been just to the liking of the dahlias, and they have grown splendidly.

A fine collection of prizes have been gathered for the occasion and will be awarded to the winners.

AUTO OWNERS SHOULD HAVE CORRECT ADDRESS

Dep't Says Licenses May

70,000 RETURNED IN 1926

By Carl L. Turner
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 22 (I.N.S.)— Benjamin G. Eynon, registrar of motor vehicles, today reminded automobile owners that the post office department does not forward license plates to new addresses and that therefore failure to notify the department is certain to result in considerable delay if an old residence has been changed.

The bureau has begun preparation of the forms for the 1928 license applications. The department is anxious to have automobile owners who have changed their residences since the 1927 mailing to notify the bureau on a special blank which is prepared for that purpose.

Although the blank applications are mailed first class and are forwarded by the post office department, tags are mailed fourth class and are returned to the department if the addressee has moved.

Last year, Eynon said, more than 70,000 renewal applications were returned for better addresses. This resulted in an average of two letters in each case, involving a postage expenditure of $2800 in addition to stenog-raphic and stationery expense.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 22.—Smoke-town is finding it extremely difficult to keep its mind on business and politics these hectic days with the Pittsburgh Pirates almost certain of winning the National League pennant.

Down where the Allegheny and the muddy Monongahela converge they are talking baseball more earnestly than at any time since 1925, when the Dreyfuss hirelings won the National League and subsequently the World Series flags.

Pittsburghers are well initiated to the famous and widely heralded tumbling act their major league has staged so often in the final and telling days of the pennant chase, yet for all their experience it is difficult to find a fan west of the Alleghenies who does not consider the buccaneers "in."

As far down the Monongahela as Morgantown and as far north as Bradford and Erie the baseball fans are arranging their chores to allow them to get away to Pittsburgh for the envisioned Pirate-Yankee melee early in October.

In Oil City, where Joe Harris, one of the mainsprings of the Pirate offense, could almost unanimously be elected mayor this year, if the baseball fans constituted the bulk of the electorate, it is beginning to look as if business will be at a standstill if the big event comes to Pittsburgh.

"Coulter" Joe spends the off seasons in Venango County and his popularity is outdone only by the valiant Lindbergh in the oil country. Farther north, at Corry, the boys are equally excited about the post-season class.
Carmen Hill, ace of Pirate pitchers, bails from Corry.

Out at Forbes Field the venerable Barney Dreyfuss, whose pockets bulge with the great receipts of one of the Pirates' most remunerative years, maintains the attitude of a poker player with three aces in his hand, waiting for a dufer with a pair of kings to lay his money on the line.

Barney won't talk about a World Series—yet. Not superstitious, of course, but nevertheless not wanting to lay down any mental or imaginary barriers between his team and the bunting by making World Series preparations with the Pirates not quite "in" numerically. But after awhile Barney will have plenty to say. He'll tell about the flock of circus seats he is secretly contemplating now; he'll tell the hungry mob of fans his nice baseball orchard will accommodate only so many thousand and the rest will have to take a little static with their World Series.

Pittsburgh's all too few first class hotels report wholesale World Series reservations at this early date. And the New York Yankees, American League champs, expect Pittsburgh to win in the senior league, too, it would seem they have placed reservation for seventy-five persons at a local hotel.
Optimism here has reached the stage where the boys down at the corner drug store are speculating on which pitcher Manager Donie Bush will start in the first game with the Yankees.

WOMAN DENIES CHARGES CONTAINED IN SUIT

Mrs. Myrtle F. Souder Fires Back Counter Charges
In Her Answer

TO MRS. M. F. HARTZELL

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 22.—Replying to the allegation of Mrs. Mamie Fluck Hartzell, of Perkasie, who is suing her for $20,000 on the ground that she alienated Mr. Hartzell's affections, Mrs. Myrtle Frey Souder, in her affidavit of defense, denies that Mrs. Hartzell ever possessed the respect and affection of her husband.

She alleges that Mrs. Hartzell's husband told her counsel that he and his wife had a serious quarrel on their wedding trip and that during all of their married life they had been unhappy. He is further alleged to have said that Mrs. Hartzell was continually striking, abusing and insulting him.
This statement was made in reply to Mrs. Hartzell's claim that before the advent of Myrtle Frey Souder she and her husband had lived in happiness and contentment.

Mrs. Souder alleges in defense that the Hartzells were continually quarreling and that Mrs. Hartzell possessed a nagging, ugly disposition, and that there was no love between them. Mrs.
Souder denies she was responsible for any loss of love between Mr. and Mrs.
Hartzell.

Further Mrs. Souder alleges Mrs.
Hartzell knew her husband was not true to her and was intimate with other women, among whom Mrs. Souder was not included. She denies that she ever had any improper relations with Hartzell, or any except of a business nature.

Turning the tables Mrs. Souder charges Mrs. Hartzell with misconduct with her husband, Mr. Souder, and that she has great affection for him.

Bergdoll Will Be Issued Passport To Return To U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (I.N.S.)— Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the draft dodger who fled to Germany, will be issued a passport to return to the United States, it was announced at the State Department today.

Instructions to give Bergdoll a passport were sent to John E. Kehl, American consul at Stuttgart. Kehl had received a letter signed by Bergdoll which asked for a passport. The passport will not permit Bergdoll to visit any other country.

As an American citizen Bergdoll does not need a passport to return home, but it was explained that it would be issued to prevent any trouble he might encounter in crossing European countries on the way to America.

If Bergdoll returns, Federal officers will be waiting to take him into custody for fleeing the draft.

PERMITS ADOPTION OF LITTLE RIEKER CHILD

Decree Granted Grandparents To Change Name To Oakley

FATHER KILLED HIMSELF

Decree of adoption for Doris Mae Rieker was granted the girl's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D.
Oakley, of South Langhorne, by Judge Ryan in Bucks County Orphans Court yesterday. The girl's father, Earnest E. Rieker, shot and killed his wife and Sheriff Abram Kulp, of Bucks County, and later committed suicide in Bucks County Prison, after two unsuccessful attempts.

Judge Ryan also granted permission for changing the girl's name from Rieker to Oakley.

Rieker, who formerly lived in Trenton, shot and killed his wife and the sheriff when they entered his house at South Langhorne to remove certain possessions of Mrs. Rieker. On the day before the murder, Mrs. Rieker had filed a petition for divorce.
At the time of the shooting, Rieker was employed in the State Department of Taxes at the State House, Trenton.

LATE NEWS

HARRINGTON, N. J., Sept. 22 (I.N.S.)—Joseph Staubach and Emil Glaner, both of Westwood, N. J., were almost instantly killed today when the light sedan in which they were riding was struck by a West Shore Railroad express, at the railroad crossing here.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 22 (I.N.S.)—A plane believed to be the one in which Eddie Stinson of Detroit is flying from New York to Spokane in a non-stop flight, was reported as having passed over Minneapolis at 3.35 this morning. "The plane was a Stinson-Detroit," Lloyd Ruth, local aviator, said. "Stinson has visited my home a number of times and I believe he roared over my house this morning to let me know he was passing through Minneapolis."

FRIENDS FETE MRS. WM. LYNCH AT HER HOME

Pleasant Evening Is Spent In Playing "500" And Pinochle

IS GIVEN CLOCK

On Saturday evening, Mrs. William Lynch was pleasantly surprised when a number of her friends gathered at her home to help celebrate her birthday anniversary.

A very enjoyable evening was spent playing cards—"500" and pinochle.
At a late hour refreshments were served in the dining room, at which time Mrs. Lynch was presented with a beautiful mahogany clock.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs.
William Barr, and daughter Doris;
Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hinman, and son Harry; Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Dyer and children, Eleanor and Kenneth; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keers, Mr. and Mrs.
Stanley Keers and children, Ethel, Violet, Anna and Lillian; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Fenton, and daughter, Vivian; Mr. and Mrs. William Lynch and children, Jane and Betty; and Mr.
Archie Keers.

Class C Planes Racing Westward in Non-Stop Hop

FELT FIELD, Spokane, Wash., Sept. 22 (I.N.S.)—With two sections of the triple-class transcontinental aerial derby already arrived at their goal, all eyes turned eastward today for first sight of the two giant Class C planes, racing westward in a non-stop flight from Roosevelt Field, N. Y.

Three planes were entered for the non-stop race, but only two were able to get off the ground. The pilots are Eddie Stinson of Detroit, flying a plane of his own make, and C. A. "Duke" Schiller, of Windsor, Ont., flying the "Royal Windsor."

The planes left Roosevelt Field yesterday afternoon and are expected here about 4 p. m. today. Barring trouble, the giant planes should be able to negotiate the 2,300 mile course in about 24 hours.

C. W. Holman, of St. Paul, won first prize of $10,000 in the Class A event.
He roared across the finish line as ten thousand spectators cheered. His elapsed time from New York to Spokane was 19 hours, 42 minutes and 52 seconds.

A few minutes after Holman landed J. S. Charles of Richmond, Va., and C. W. Meyers, of Detroit, sailed down from the clouds practically in a dead heat for first prize money in the Class B event.

Charles was the first to land, but Meyers will probably be declared the winner of the $5,000 purse on elapsed time. This is a matter which the officials will have to decide.

The successful aviators all agreed the race was the most thrilling and hazardous of their several careers.

There were fifteen starters in the Class A race. Eight of these finished, the others being forced down at various points along the route or failing to take off. Of 25 entries in the Class B flight, ten finished the race.

Stafford Elected Head Of American Legion

TROCADERO PALACE, Paris, Sept.
22 (I.N.S.)—Edward E. Stafford, of New York City, was unanimously elected National Commander of the American Legion for the ensuing year at the closing session of the Legion convention here today.

A sharp conflict on the immigration question featured the closing business session of the convention.

After a bitter debate, the Legionnaires declined to approve a proposal to make the President of the United States an "immigration dictator," empowered to raise or lower the barriers of immigration at will.

The proposal was contained in a report presented by the Americanization Committee of the Legion, urging Congress to grant this power to the President.

EUROPEAN TRIP ENJOYED BY MRS. C. L. ANDERSON

Accompanied by Miss Evelyn Sheehan, Burgess' Wife
Tours by Auto

DESCRIBES HER VISITS

Among the many who have but recently returned from enjoyable summers spent abroad are Mrs. Clifford L.
Anderson, wife of Burgess Anderson, who was accompanied on the three months' tour of France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Holland and England, by Miss Evelyn Sheehan, of Winchester, Mass., a frequent visitor to Bristol.

The two, leaving New York, June 24th, on the Majestic, experienced delightful weather at sea, and arrived in Paris with a desire to commence their personally conducted tour of the old country as soon as possible.

Paris was thoroughly traversed, two days being spent on the battlefields in that section, and the Rheims, and Eiffel Tower were examined and made. Practically all of the tour was made via automobile, and Mrs. Anderson and Miss Sheehan found this a most pleasing way to view European countries.

While in Switzerland it was possible for the group to make its way over Grimsel and Furka passes by machine.
These two passes are open to travel practically only three months of the year, and at the time the Bristolians made the journeys snow banks 15 feet high were sometimes located along the route.

It was necessary that paths be cut through before the tourists season opened. These two mountains are covered by snow at all times. The route was very treacherous, therefore it is necessary for the chauffeur to be very experienced. Luzerne and Interlocken were also visited while the two were in this mountainous section.

"Switzerland was my favorite country," Mrs. Anderson remarked upon her return. "The chateaus are so numerous, and each boasts of boxes upon boxes of flowers." Pink geraniums predominate, but there are many other varieties as well. The fuchsias, according to the wife of Burgess Anderson, appear to be of a sturdier variety than those found here, the plants having the appearance of small trees.

Past large estates and through small towns and the beautiful countryside the machines passed enroute to Italy. The Castle of Chillon, made famous by Byron, proved of interest at Montreux. Rome and Naples were not passed by unnoticed, and at the former city an audience was had with the Pope, and some rooms of the Vatican were explored. St. Peter's Cathedral was thought most beautiful by the Bristolian and the travelers were required to use tapers as they went through the Catacombs. "In the Catacombs we found it quite cool and damp, and much different from the weather on the outside, as it was so warm in Italy," Mrs. Anderson told.

At Pompeii, Mount Vesuvius was one of the main points of interest, and the ruins of the ancient city, and beautiful drives occupied part of the time. On one of the drivers they wendered their way along the Gulf of Salerno to Sorrento.

A fine description of the Blue Grotto at Capri was given by Mrs. Anderson.
This rocky chamber is lighted by the reflection from the floor of the sea. It is only possible for those who wish to view the grotto to enter when there is a low tide. Individuals are taken inside through a small aperture in a little boat, and as the opening is low it is necessary for those entering to remain low in the craft. Florence and Venice were next, and while at the latter place those partaking in the tour were pleased to see a carnival at night. While this special carnival was being held nothing but gondolas were allowed on the canals. There are many steam-propelled boats used on the Venetian canals at the present time, but these are prohibited use of the waterways at the time of the annual carnival. It was described as a the arrest of each defendant.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 22.—The September term of criminal court will end today. The traverse jurors not serving on cases were excused by Judge Ryan yesterday. With the completion of the trial list for the September term the records show that close to $2000 in fines were imposed on nine drunken drivers, eight of whom were sent to prison and fined and one who escaped with a fine alone.

The case of Nicholas G. Polen, of New Galena, charged with the possession of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, was continued yesterday until the December term owing to the absence of one of the officers who made the raid on the Polen hotel.

Adam G. Calhoun, of Germantown, who was tried before Judge Williams, of Montgomery county, specially presiding here at the May session, and who was granted a new trial, after being convicted, was yesterday acquitted by a jury in Court No. 2 before Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg, and the costs were placed on the county. Calhoun was acquitted of operating his automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Charges of aggravated assault and battery against Calhoun were nolle-prossed.
In the trial of the case, Calhoun was represented by former District Attorney Hiram H. Keller, of Doylestown.
The Commonwealth charged that Calhoun was drunk while driving on the Bristol pike at Crolyon on December 19, when George Colville, of Bensalem township, was injured when the Calhoun car and the car in which he was riding crashed together. The Commonwealth produced no evidence of a medical examination as to Calhoun's condition at the time of the accident.

The Commonwealth was represented by private counsel, Franklin Gilke-son, of Bristol.

Before Judge Ryan in Court No. 1 yesterday afternoon, Frank M. Jones, of Frankford, went on trial to answer a charge of driving his automobile while drunk at Ryan's Corner, August 27, when he was placed under arrest by Corporal S. J. Kennedy, of the State Highway Patrol stationed at Edison.

The jury in the case retired about 2 o'clock and up until Court adjourned at 5.30, had not returned a verdict.
A sealed verdict was returned this morning.

In the trial of the case, Jones admitted that he was drunk on the oc-

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1927

AUTUMN

The first suggestions of autumn are not so much seen as felt. They are vague and indistinct, yet real. The fading of summer into fall resembles the subtle changes that overtake one at middle life, in that it is slight, gentle and unobtrusive. There is a little lessening of vision, and the eyes are weary after extended reading. So comes the resort to spectacles, not of course that they are really needed, but as "an aid to reading, a preventative only." There is a slight slowing up of physical activities, a resolution not to overdo; a feeling that one has earned the right to slacken the pace and relax a little oftener. Yet there is still zest in living, and charm and color and melody continue to allure. Thus slowly, almost imperceptibly, but surely, comes the knowledge that one has reached high noon, and the shadows must of necessity lengthen toward the East.

It is in the month of September that summer fades into autumn. The tokens at first are not numerous, but they are there. Something in the air is alien to August, a certain crispness that is tonic. There is a slight haze on the horizon. The greenness of the earth and trees is subdued, and there are faint tints of brown appearing here and there. There is a shimmering and a shivering in the corn fields, and the process of ripening is quickened daily. A few of the birds have already answered the call of the Southland, but many linger to gladden the eyes of the wayfarer and cheer his heart. Winter still seems a long way off, and it is good to know that between September days and flurry of snow and ice are the flaming splendors of October.

September is a month that has much to offer to those who are in love with life under the open sky. The days are cool, but not too cool for comfort. The rays of the sun are genial, but not unpleasantly warm. The early mornings are bracing, and the early evenings have in them a quality of dreamy ardor. The leaves are falling, but not in profusion. Summer fades slowly, almost as imperceptibly as the charm of a beautiful woman in her early forties whose eyes are still eloquent, and with healthful fervor undiminished. Such is September, wending midway between the purple maturity of midsummer, and the old gold and crimson of the crowning days of autumn.

Few things are more useless than a family tree after a financial reverse.

Another dismal failure is man's effort to look modest while admitting he was right.

Have any of these women who wanted equal rights started supporting their husbands yet?

SYNOPSIS

Sheila Kildare and her father emigrate to America to follow Emmett Murtough to whom she was betrothed. Neither Kildare nor Murtough hold steady jobs and Sheila works as a waitress. Her only friends are the family of Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer whose kindness interests her. Murtough joins a band of bootleggers and when tempted by a cabaret girl, Clarice, exults with rivals and betrays the hiding place of $150,000 contraband.

The Clocker building stood well screened from the road and in the rear a slightly inclined path led down to the beach. This also was screened on either side by a high hedge which had been left to grow wild. The hedge had been set out by the old fashioned owner of the estate in the days when bathing parties preferred not to be seen until they were safely in the water. It provided a perfect camouflage for the bootleggers' purposes. There was a pier which had been rebuilt and strengthened since Clocker had taken over the estate.

Murtough was not completely familiar with the place. He never had engaged in any of the expeditions to the ships at sea, nor had he ever helped to unload incoming cargo brought in by motor boats. He had driven down there in the daytime, however, and he knew that there was no house within a mile in any direction from the Clocker buildings.

Schermer was the man of action. It was he who had encircled the buildings half a dozen times and who had gone down to the beach in the darkness and surveyed the layout there. He would place his men about the place and personally direct the attack on the house and the guards. The four men slipped quietly through the timberland and to the spot where they had parked their car, a quarter of a mile away from the estate.

"We can count on jumping them at one o'clock, I think," said Schermer to the mysterious thin leader who sat by his side in the front seat. "We'll have to start then because if they haven't begun to load their trucks, it means we'll have to go it, and you know it takes time to handle as many cases as that in the dark. If there's a fight it means more delay. I don't expect much of a fight unless Clocker intends to take it out on Saturday night." He turned to Murtough. "Clocker will be at the West End Club dance, won't he, Saturday night?"

"Sure, he goes to everything there."

"Then it's a cinch he doesn't plan to move it until after Saturday night at least. I figure we will need eight trucks and we've got to have a pilot car and rear car for each pair. That's eight trucks and eight fast machines. We'll need thirty-two men alone for drivers and guards and I think we ought to take down a half a dozen more for emergency. What do you think of Hymie Goltz? He's got two shoulder machine gun rides, you know and they may come in handy."

"Do whatever you think best. I don't care how many or who you get, but don't fail."

"We can't." Again he turned to Murtough. "How many men does Clocker have as guards there regularly?" he asked.

"Simmons and two others are all I've ever seen."

"Well, we'll be prepared, because he may put on an extra watch with all that stuff on hand."

Further details of the plan for the raid were to be worked out upon the arrival of the leaders in the City. There was no more conversation until the four of them had reached safely the suite in the Marmaduke Hotel. After they had refreshed themselves Schermer turned to Murtough.

"Murtough, your job is done. Now let me warn you, don't try to tip off anybody. It only means that we'll prove that you gave us the information, and you'll have not only as on your neck but Clocker as well. You're in now and good and deep, so you better walk straight."

"Just to be sure that he does put somebody on to trail him around until after Sunday," suggested the tall, thin leader. "That'll hold him safe."

"Good, I'll do that. And, Murtough, on Sunday, I'll meet you at the Circle Garage, have your money for me and provide a car and driver to take you and the girl up into Connecticut. There you can get married and start your honeymoon. How's that, that's treating you fair, isn't it?"

"What time will you meet me?"

"Two o'clock in the afternoon. In the meantime go on about your business just as you usually do. Go to the dance on Saturday night and forget what you did today. All clear."

"Right."

"Goodbye then until Sunday," and Murtough was dismissed.

Murtough made his way to his lodgings and threw himself on the bed. It was after three o'clock in the morning. He was worn out, but sleep evaded him. The whole of his adventure to America passed before him. There was Sheila and Old Tom, and Clarice, and Clocker, and Rory. Rory O'Shea! He would win Sheila now, Murtough speculated. Well, what did he care? he would have enough money to start a real business some place else. After all, Clarice was the more up-to-date of the two girls.

But how did all this come about, these events which had overtaken him in twenty-four hours? Trapped into turning informer, promised a fine sum of money and a new chance? Who could have tipped off these men? The very fact that another knew that Murtough had talked, frightened him. That person could tell Clocker of his treachery, as well as not, and what would Clocker do? Would he dare face Clocker at the Club tomorrow and the next night, the night of the dance? He decided that he must find out from Clarice what had prompted her to send him the note. Had she been forced to do so by whoever it was who had heard the conversation at Corrigan's? Wearily he changed his clothes, but as the problem grew in immensity and his eagerness to learn the truth advanced within him he forgot weariness and soon was on his way to the Castle.

Schermer as soon as Murtough had gone called the Castle and asked to speak with Miss Clancey. "Murtough came through, and you're going to get yours all right. But, don't tell him what part you played in it. Say that you never met me but that one of your friends in a big party suggested that you send him to me. I don't think Murtough even suspects that you had anything to do with it."

"Okey, everything! Just so the coin is safe for me," said the shrewd Clarice as she hung up the receiver.

This warning was fresh in her ears when Murtough found her in the bathroom and signaled her to sit down.

"I got a lot to tell you, Clarice. We're set. I made a deal today that runs into thousands and it's all for me and you. We can get married and get the right kind of a start I can promise you."

"Well, don't talk too much here, Big Boy. Better order something to eat and later we'll go have a real talkfest together where it's quiet."

"Any place but Corrigan's," said Murtough.

"Why, that's where we wafe the other night."

"And that's why we're not going there now," he replied.

When they had seated themselves in one of the small booths at the Eagle Cafe, Murtough recounted in detail his experiences.

"An, darling, he's going to meet us at two o'clock on Sunday with a machine and the money, all ready to get married in Connecticut."

"That's great," she responded, but in her wise little head Clarice determined that that marriage proposition was something which depended on whether the purse strings were to be in her hands or not. "I knew you'd make good, Big Boy. I knew it. The minute that friend of mine suggested that I knew a real good truck driver to send him to Mr. Schermer, isn't Mr. Schermer nice?"

"He treated me square; I can say that for him."

MARKED IMPROVEMENT IN PIRATES' INFIELD

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 22.—Marked improvement in the Pirate infield is one of the foremost reasons advanced by all critics for the corsairs' refusal to "break" in the final spurt for the 1927 National League pennant.

Infield errors, particularly, around short and second base, were not the least important of Manager Donie Bush's worries early in the season. But as the pirates forged to within grasp of the pennant there was a wonderful change almost overnight.

Grantham, normally a first baseman but playing second to make room in the line-up for Joe Harris and his powerful slugging, threw off his handicap in the last Philadelphia series and has made but few boots in the last five games.

Wright, too, has improved to a marked degree his former weakness of being unable to get the ball away quick enough to execute badly needed double plays almost vanished with the Boston series.

Both Grantham and Wright are young players. The steady influence of old Joe Harris at first base, and the veteran, Captain "Pie" Traynor at Third, aided the younger pair immensely.

And at bat the pair presents a troublesome problem for opposing pitchers. In seven recent games Grantham registered nine hits, two of them doubles and two triples. Wright got only one less hit in the same contests. His tallies included a home run and two doubles.

And in their mad dash pennantward the bushmen have seemingly overthrown all of their old time jinx. One was Kent Greenfield, of the Boston Braves. Heretofore, when Greenfield started against the Pirates they just about counted on losing the game. The worm has turned.

In the recent Boston series Greenfield started twice against the buccaneers in two successive days and twice went down to defeat before a team of confident players who had forgotten his onetime uncanny ability to defeat them.

The Pirates are thinking of only one thing, in fact, and that is winning the National League pennant. They want to match bludgeons with Babe Ruth and "Larruping Lou" Gehrig, of the American League champs.

fair have their counterparts in modern times, according to Frank L. Kleeberger, professor of physical education in the university.

Automatic revolvers and death-dealing hand grenades may have superseded the long lance of Medieval knights and the sharp rapier of Louis XIV. courtiers, but dexterity in the use of these outmoded weapons of combat still remains a valuable asset.

In pursuance of his belief in the truth of this theory, Professor Kleeberger has just instituted a new course in fencing for men at the university. When young John College strolls forth with his co-ed friend, according to the professor, he should be prepared to use a cane or a stick in defense of his lady love. That's where a knowledge of the honorable art of fencing comes in handy, the professor insists.

But besides fencing, the modern Lothario should be accomplished in other physical arts, the professor said today. "Every man," he declared, "should be able to swim, run and defend himself and any weaker person who needs his help. Besides this he should be agile and have power and endurance."

The gold tooth, heretofore, adorning the mouths of only those who could afford them, will soon be superseded by a tooth, not so expensive, but just as good if experiments to be conducted by the University of California college of dentistry succeed.

Under a new plan in the dentistry school which adds the study of metallurgy to the curriculum, it is hoped, to find a worthy substitute for gold and platinum in dental work that shall not tax the pocketbook so greatly. J. S. Shell, professor of chemistry and metallurgy at the university said today, explaining that metallurgy differs from metallurgy in that it is the study of metal constituents instead of derivations.

Professor Shell has already experimented with tin, silver, copper, and aluminum. Several inlays of these are already in the mouths of patients treated at the University of California dental clinic in San Francisco.

The civilizations of such primitive modern peoples as the Tasmanians, the Pygmy groups, the Tierra del Fuegians, and the Shoshoneans of Nevada are the subjects of a book, written by Robert H. Lowie, professor of anthropology at the University of California and just published. The new tome is called "The Origin of the State."

DAILY NEWS LETTER

By Copeland C. Burg

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—With winter's approach, Chicago has been gripped by the Little Theatre movement.

More than a score of tiny show-houses, playing usually only Saturday and Sunday nights, dot the city, centering in the Bohemian district on the near north side between North avenue south to Ontario street.

Many of the theatres are money makers and each week-end turns away hundreds of disappointed patrons, arriving too late for seats.

Practically all of the theatres are located in alleys and the buildings housing them are often rat-infested, dilapidated and dimly-lighted. Many are reached by nothing more than tunnels or trap-doors in walls or over a creaking stairway across an alley.

Artists, writers, "barlorunks," radicals and seekers of fame in similar avocations and livelihoods make up the audiences. Smoking is enjoyed at most of the places and at some women may be noted as addicts of the pipe and cigar, as well as the cigarette.

Among the best known of these clubs or theatres is the Dill Pickle, which offers plays, lectures and debates, always followed by dancing. This club is located in an ancient, barn-like building on a North Side alley, not far from Lake Michigan's shores. In days gone by Ben Hecht and other now-famous Chicagoans were said to have been habitués of the place.

The Black Cat, another alley house, is offering a long series of plays and lectures. The latter are devoted for the most part to sex subjects.

Another theatre on North Clark street attracts many patrons through appeal to radicals and socialists, featuring plays designed to attract that element. It is located in the rear of a book store, where every type of radical and socialist literature may be purchased. Every Saturday and Sunday night several hundred Little Theatre fans are jammed into the tiny hall behind long rows of books. Benches serve as seats, the stage is barely more than ten feet across and the costumes of the players and scenery are "homemade."

Most of the talent at the theatres is purely amateur, although at some of the theatre club prices as high as one dollar and more for a single admission are charged. At such places as the Dill Pickle club from 300 to 400 persons are entertained two and three times a week. As operating expenses are almost nil, profits to the managers are quite sizeable.

Chicago's Little Theatre movement has even spread to the cinema field.

"Potemkin," a Russian production for the screen with the roles cared for entirely by members of the Moscow Art theatre is being produced here this fall. No "jazz" orchestra, vaudeville or other entertainment is offered with the film. A Bohemian touch is given the Little Theatre idea in the movies by the serving of coffee and cigarettes in the lounge of the theatre. "Potemkin" is proving quite a crowd-attraction, especially among society folk.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Sept. 22 (I. N. S.)—At least a half dozen blue Ridge League players are to advance in baseball circles as the result of the stellar brand of ball they exhibited during the past season.

Rusty Saunders, Chambersburg outfielder, goes to the Philadelphia Athletics; Ralston Hensley, Frederick catcher, goes to the Pittsburgh Pirates; Eddie Rontz, Hanover shortstop, will be with the Charlotte Club of the South Atlantic League; Erwin Sexton, Hanover outfielder, goes to the Toronto Canucks, and Frankie Roscoe, Hanover outfielder and pitcher, goes to the Williamsport team of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

With the exception of Roscoe, all the players were sold outright.

SELLERSVILLE—Laurabelle Cassell is able to be out again after injuries sustained in an automobile accident. Her sister is still in the hospital.

Parkland

The Kreimburg cottage on Sunflower avenue was the setting for a happy week-end party, folks coming up from their city homes to enjoy an outing at this place. They were as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. A. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kreimburg, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Emily Peberdy, Jack and Frank Rust and Albert Jenkins.

Although most of the summer families have now closed their cottages south of R. R., Mrs. Anna Jordan and son and daughter still continue to enjoy life at their pleasant cottage, where on Sunday they entertained their cousin, Robert Drain, formerly of this place, but now of Florida.

The following named Parkland boys have joined the Boy Scout troop at South Langhorne: Charles W. Carter, John New, LeRoy Nowack, Robert Taylor, Wilburn Miller, Jack Taylor, Albert Amenhauser and Henry B. schatz. Scoutmaster Charles schatz has offered a prize to the first patrol to complete its full number of eight members. As Parkland boys have no full patrol and are the first to get the goal, they feel very happy about this honor. They are now k

Both Fighters Are Confident of Winning

looks the same to me as the rest of them did from the time I knocked out Willard. I expect to knock him out and it shouldn't go farther than seven rounds. I feel like my old self again and that's the most assuring factor of it all to me. I've got everything I ever had, I feel, and that's what makes me sure I am going to win."

Dempsey made no secret of his elation over winning his point not to have to tape his hands in the ring. The handages will be put on in the dressing rooms, with representatives of the Illinois Boxing Commission and of both fighters witnessing the procedure. Dempsey complained that he gets "cold" if forced to tape his hands after he has entered the ring.

Tunney, in his final interview, said he believed Dempsey will be 25 per cent. easier to beat this time.

"I mean to stop him," said the champion. "I feel great. The cold spell has put the proper zip in me. I have planned my style of battle to counter any mode of attack Dempsey employs. I am even more certain I will win than I was when I first engaged Dempsey at Philadelphia last year."

The fight will net Tunney a profit of $1,000,000, the largest amount ever paid any pugilist for a single battle. Dempsey has been given a flat guarantee of $450,000. If promoter Tex Rickard's estimate of attendance of 150,000 proves correct, the fight will draw 20,000 more spectators than any previous fight encounter. The gate receipts are expected to total more than $2,500,000.

very colorful sight.

Germany was the next country to which attention was turned. There Munich, Dresden and Berlin gave much, and the Kaiser's palace at Potsdam was shown to the group, as well as the residence of Frederick the Great. A stop was made at Frankfurt and at Wiesbaden there are mineral springs.

Passing down the Rhine to Cologne on a steamer, Brussels claimed the attention of the two women and others in the party. One point of particular interest was the Battlefield of Waterloo.

While in Holland places in Amsterdam were seen and a trip made to the Island of Marken, and to Volendam. At the two last named places the people are in native costumes. After staying a short time at The Hague, the group spent a week in London, viewing Westminster Abbey, Windsor Castle, and Stohl Poges where Gray is buried. All likewise enjoyed the Shakespeare country and were loath to leave Kenilworth Castle.

The S. S. Olympic had Mrs. Anderson and Miss Sheehan as passengers when it sailed from Southampton, and arrived in New York September 17th.

—corn flakes that stay crisp in milk or cream

A man's appetite is just a boy's—grown up!

The crisp, crunchy deliciousness of corn flakes is at its best in Post Toasties. Was there ever a boy who could resist this delightful combination of true corn flavor and double-crispness? Men are merely boys—grown up. Give men Post Toasties. They like the crunchy goodness, the unequalled flavor of these double-crisp corn flakes. Serve Post Toasties with milk or cream. Try them, too, with juicy berries and luscious fruits. Here is one dish that men never tire of—Post Toasties, the corn flakes with the true corn flavor sealed into lasting crispness by the special process of the Postum Company. When you want corn flakes that stay crisp in milk or cream, ask your grocer for Post Toasties, in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package that keeps them fresh and ready to serve.
